CLOVERPORT, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 27, 1893.

NO. 23.

The Sly Old Coon
Oh, it's fun to go to parties, but to dance's sake
An' I've done some like the operas, an' I doves as concert girls, chock full.
But I never you alliter parties from now until next 'nove.

If I could be a boy again an' go gonnin' for a party.

Yes, I know how suchs are pretty, an' I like to eat ice cream.

An' it's nice to watch the waltzers a-pause like a dream.

But I never the sweetest made; that was ever set to a come.

Wasn't one of them dogs as 'sows a chain of come?

How them hand's would yep' un' caper as no youngsters present around!

The dead dead rattled out an' frost laid An' the country seemed transfigured by the mutter autumn moon.

An' the country was propitious for to watch the old old come.

Oh, you bet I all forgot's how I felt when we was boys.

They was'nt in all the crowd could beat me in a race.

A talkie's a whistler, a hollerin' like a haw.

But he by he is kept' still enough once I'd raided a coon.

There was'nt none there, either, there,
that I ever seen' them wear.

There was'nt there I've plumb forgot—what I was young as lid!

We coons'nt a-sing, a-sing, a-sing an' make a noise.

Oh, you bet I loaded her game when we
was older coons.

We'd right out for tall timber, a dozen boys an'
a dog.

We'd scratch her fur off in the brush and bark our skins on logs.

But we'd run and whooped; we hung like Dan'l Roan.

Then we'd pull up under some big tree that had a corned root.

Some day we'd have to hide in hollows, in the trees.

An' some time we'd hang' a big hub, too high up to see.

An' some time we'd have to sit on his cheeks as round
as a hallow—

But close at hand o' sight, he was the best coon.

There was'nt 'squat a coon's physique that always makes me laugh—

A lone as solemn as a judge on the learnin' of a call.

But we'd always camped on his trail the sharpgoed off 'forenoon.

Found out it wasn't funny, for he knowned we
was our coon.

Some day we'd shoot the tree down; sometimes we was'nt even' givin' them a shoot.

Sometimes one of 'em'd limb a haw, shoot 'em down for fun.

He'd lay down and work there all night, or he might drop pretty soon.

But we never lefted him, got his headsy, ring tales.

We was'nt afraid to tingle 'round, no matter where we'd round.

But more's once when we'd right ketched we was'nt even' givin' them a shoot.

At first we'd sit on his back, when we all got back at noon.

Never failed in the crowd showed off a big time.

You'd see a coon's eye open, and now we're coons.

An' patterlike over 'op' house, now we're
coons.

But we'd always camped on his trail the sharp-
goed off 'forenoon.

Found out it wasn't funny, for he knowned we
was our coon.

LOOKS LIKE BUSINESS.

Industries of the South Are Getting Into Lively Motion Once More.

All Business Improving, and Appearances Promise the Most Promising Season To Be Just Now Budding.

HARD TIMES RETREATING.

The Manufacturer, following the lead given by the following list of Southern industries renewing operations, after temporary suspensions, and of new ones starting up.

The copper works at Ducktown, Tennessee, have resumed operations.

The Glen Grove Coal Company, Glen Grove, West Virginia, has resumed mining operations.

The Riverside Steel Works at Wheeling, West Virginia, have resumed operations.

Two steel furnaces and the nail factory at the La Belle Mills, of Wheeling, West Virginia, have started up.

Business has been resumed at the mills of the Gardner and Lucy Lumber Company of Georgetown, South Carolina.

The blast furnaces, rolling mill, and spike works of the Allegheny Company of Iron Gate, Virginia, have started up.

After a short down of several weeks, the knitting mill at Scotland Neck, North Carolina, has resumed manufacturing.

Eckley & Co.'s planing mills, at Martinsburg, West Virginia, have been put in operation after a short down of several weeks.

The Master Works of Birmingham, Alabama, has resumed operations giving employment to about fifty men.

It is stated that the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company will blow in two furnaces in Birmingham, Alabama, known as the Alice plant.

Sometimes we chopped the tree down; sometimes we used our gun;

Sometimes we climb the big limb, shoot a hawk;

He might keep us working all night, or he might drop right down;

But we never let him go; we got that angry, ringing out of his pocket,

But for the sweetest music that was ever set to tune;

Wait a minute, then comes dog song when they'd raled a Long Crik song.

Than a cure, and those who are subject to rheumatism can prevent attacks by keeping the blood pure and free from the acid which causes the disease. You can rely upon Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for rheumatism and catarrh, also for every form of scrofula, salt rheums, boils and other diseases caused by impure blood. It tones and vitalizes the whole system.

Hood's Pillar is easy and gentle in effect.

See our Insurance Ad C. B. & O. T. SKILLMAN.

The Brad Gin Company of Memphis, Tenn., has resumed business after reorganization and is now operated by the Brad Gin, Hause and Plow Company.

The Birmingham, Alabama, Hardware Company has put its plant at East Birmingham, and is already again operating after a long stoppage.

The iron furnace of the Ashland, Kentucky, Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, resumed operations November 15th; and another furnace will blow in about Dec. 1st.

The Bellair Steel Works, of Wheeling, West Virginia, have started up after a four month's shut down. The furnace now gives employment to two hundred people.

The Donald Lumber and Manufacturing Company of Nelson, Alabama, will resume business operations under the name of the Southern Lumber Manufacturing Company.

The old Panhandle Glass Works, now reopened the West Virginia Window Glass Works, of Weisbush, West Virginia, after being idle for nine years, has started up again in full.

The Gardner & Lucy Company's plant on the island opposite Weisbush, West Virginia, has been recently purchased and is in good condition, under the personal supervision of Mr. E. J. Marsh, their new superintendent, who came from Baton

Rouge, Louisiana, and has taken quite a large share of the capital stock of the company.

The mill and dry kilns were started in full, and the dry kilns are already loaded to large容积 at their shelves for the last two weeks.

W. J. Dean Sr., went to Owensboro last week to hear Teal lecture.

Mrs. George Robertson will be at home Saturday to spend the holiday.

Mrs. W. V. Wortham is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Dean.

Mrs. Bettie Webb, of the Heights, spent last week with her sister, Mrs. R. W. Owen.

Mrs. Edna Robertson spent several days in Hardinsburg last week the guest of Miss Bush.

It is with deep regret we write that

Mrs. R. H. Moorman is sinking rapidly and her death is expected at any time.

Mrs. Kate Bennett, who has been vis-ing relatives in the community, returned to her home in Lexington last Thursday.

E. H. Penn has returned from Owensboro, where he has been visiting his brother, Mr. S. M. Dean, who is in a very critical condition.

The sick at Mr. Henry Dean's are getting along nicely, although there is no real decided change for the better.

They have the sympathy of the entire community.

SOUTHERN ADVENTURES.

VIEW TODAY! LOW &amp; TON

The Cheapest Lands in the South Are as Productive as "Cotton" Lands Out West.

And Homes in Dixie at Any Price Are Much Cheaper than Free Homesteads on the Unimproved Plains.

FAVORABLE COMPARISONS.

Now that the rush for lands in the Cherokee strip is over, those who have been fortunate enough to secure a quarter section will have plenty of time to reflect on the mistake they have made. There is no timber, no minerals, no natural resources whatever out of which the homesteaders can hope to make a living. The lands are too poor to warrant competency. The only industry that will bring him any returns is agriculture, and in this regard the strip possesses not one single advantage that can not be found in the South for less money and labor. Before particular care can be exercised, however, the lands must be improved. The cost of the improvements necessary to build a house and fence in that treacherous region will run the cost of the homesteader's home that of a much more desirable one in the south. Not one single thing can be grown there that can not be produced with equal success on the cheap at home in the South. In this case, however, and, especially, and every one who has investigated the matter concludes that as far as profit is concerned, the manufacture of lumber is the best offer less than the South offers better in dimensions than any other section, not excepting the Pacific slope.

Now it is in order to make a comparison of the merits of Southern and Western cheap lands for agricultural purposes.

Let us take the best sugar lands of Nebraska that, under Government supervision, were heralded for and wide as the most profitable for investment of any in the country. The report of the U. S. Surveyor General, in his annual report, Omaha, Nebraska, shows that with all the wealth and high skill of the United States Government to back up the sugar-making experiments, that the average cost of cultivation of an acre of sugar beet, including transportation, foot up $52.2, and the average value of product per acre was $63.20, leaving just $1.20 profit per acre. This, remember, was under all the aid the Government could render in the way of skill and money.

In contrast to this what was done by colored people, poor and reared in slavery, on the sugar lands of Louisiana. One is female, Mary Walker by name, of 32 years, and the other is a male, and he is said to be the father, 200 tons of cane for $50 and made a net profit of $32. Robert Holmes, a colored man of the same name raised 20 tons of cane on twelve acres and netted $30. Of course, the lordly planters, with capital to back them, will tell Jim Crow a long way, but they are given to show what a poor man can do in the South. The trustee.

To suffering humanity to tell the great benefit my wife has received from Park's Cure, the truly great Liver and Kidney Cure, the only one that has been widely used for several years. Tried everything fruitlessly. After much persuasion from my druggist—backed by his guarantee I bought a bottle of Park's Cure and the results are more than wonderful. W. P. The Louisville Monthly.

We take pleasure in noting that The Louisville, the Ladies' Home Monthly, published at 81 Warren street, New York City, has been greatly improved by its new appearance. It is the best 5 cent monthly that comes from the printing table.

It contains trustworthy advice on the vital interest of home on health, housekeeping, education, and things which make life pleasant. Readers will find a better work, no better writers in their special departments than any where than in this monthly in the Louisville Monthly. Subscriptions for this magazine is but 50 cents a year. Agents and advertisers receive acceptable premiums.

Christmas is coming and many of our lady acquaintances will have a good chance of procuring some valuable presents with but little work.

We are sorry—the publishers, The Louisville Corporation, will not promise to send sample copies to any one asking for them. Send them a postal card.

Tobacco In Louisville.

It Puts $100,000 in Circulation Daily in That City—$25,000,000 Annually

In Kentucky.

It is a fact, though not particularly well-known, that the present increase of the local tobacco market calls into active circulation each business day in this city from $75,000 to $100,000 in actual cash. This is a large amount of money for the past ten years. This money comes from all parts of the country to Louisville, as a recognized tobacco center, to liquidate the tobacco crops of Kentucky and its sister states. As an active, large money circulation is what is wanted just at present, it is logical to assume that the tobacco companies, the wholesalers, the tobacco merchants, as well as all other lines of business or trade directly, will profit thereby and lend material assistance in re-establishing confidence.

Another fact in connection with tobacco, worthy of note and interesting and instructive, is the amount of product of the state of Kentucky represents, in round numbers, $25,000,000. This has been the average estimate now for several years past.

SUPPLEMENT.

DOMINO, THE RACE HORSE.
He is the greatest Four-year-old Racer
America has produced.

Below is a picture of the Keene Bros. Domino, the racer who made for him owners this year $167,739, the largest sum ever won by one horse in one year in this country.

Domino has never beaten. Whatever he may do or not do as a maturer horse, his record as a 2-year-old will probably not be equalled for many years to come. It will not surprise anybody to know that Domino is Kentucky born and bred. He was foaled on the farm of Major B. C. Thomas of Lexington. Victor, a person who is a well-known owner of the Kentucky horse breeder this year. Domino's sire was Hinny, his dam, Nannie Gray, a daughter of Englisher, and a very good stock horse.

It will be interesting to know that as a yearling Domino was not considered very promising. It was said of him that he was too small and that his chances were poor. All the same, they got him. They brought the winnings of the Keene stable this year to the top of the pile. Domino's trainer is W. H. Lankester; his rider usually Tandy.

Bull Cattle Outlook.

The immense floods of cattle—of all colors, here, here, here, and calves—of all conditions from prime fat to skin and bone that have been thrown upon the market during the past year or two can mean nothing else than that the ranges are being overgrazed. The depletion of the herds must be a practical necessity. It must be a natural and inevitable supply that could stand the drain of the past two years without having its power for turning the tide of the market. If merely the increase were held, there would be small hope of any betterment in prices until the demand increased materially. The supply from the ranges, however, stuck on the ranges would be a constant one and would serve to hold prices down.

The fact is, however, that everything is going. The lessened supply has not been made plainly manifest yet, for the reason that the breeding stock has been reduced to a minimum. The breeding stock must soon begin to run short, which will directly result in a shortage of steers also, for the marketing of fat-fall steers is a natural result of the decrease in the number of cattle which have raised and had remained upon the range. How soon this condition of affairs will become a reality is difficult to say, but it is impossible to say. There are other things that must be taken into consideration in determining the future of the cattle trade.

The number of cattle on the farms of Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa and the other western states has rather increased than diminished during the past two years, and the supply of cattle from these farms is increasing. The fact that there is but a small margin of profit on each animal, or possibly none at all, seems to have had a great influence upon the number of breeders that are left.

Every farmer must have a certain number of cattle to pasture off his waste land in summer and to eat the rough feed in winter. The farmer, however, can't keep whether there is any particular pay in it or not. The supply, from this source will be a constant one and will have to be sold at a loss, for the market price has been predicted. The outcome will be this: the supply of range cattle, the heavy marketing of which at certain seasons of the year, will be determined by the condition of pasture, tends to depress prices and at best to render them very feeble, is being lessened and will in time cease to be of any marked influence on the market.

On the other hand, the supply of cattle in the eastern states, which have been lessened, is not likely to be. A man in the cattle business must change his close competition of these here for a long time—probably forever. Cattle can be raised on western farms so easily and cheaply that it is difficult to imagine any condition of affairs can drive prices up to the pitch of nine or ten years ago. The market cannot not expect to see some figures. The market, however, can hope for is a steady market at fairly remunerative prices, and they must go to work with the idea of raising cattle more cheaply rather than of receiving double present prices. — Exchange.

Christmas in Cloverport.

MERCHANTS DO A SURPRISINGLY LARGE HOLIDAY BUSINESS.

The Town is crowded with Strangers, and Money Seems to Be as Plentiful as Limestone Rocks.

DRUNKEN ROWS AND FIGHTS

As a result of Christmas in Cloverport, everybody is trying to satisfy and impress the visitors, and the merchants did a larger business than was known before. Those who made large preparations for the holidays and had in large stocks of Christmas novelties, sold out clean, and on Christmas morning, you could not buy a basket of fruit or a toy hardly in the entire city.

On Christmas morning, in the evening eve, there were more people here than was known since "the evening and the morning were the first day."

People began to arrive early in the morning and soon the stores and the streets were crowded with strangers.

They were exchanging produce and cash for Santa Clause outfit, and clerks and cashiers, from 8 o'clock a. m. till midnight.

Chronic calamity, however, who had stationed themselves in unfavorable positions to draw unfavorable comparisons with this and former holiday seasons were soon put to flight, and no attention was paid to them.

The News has interviewed the prominent merchants of the town and without exception everyone expresses himself as highly pleased and perfectly satisfied with the result.

When a few days ago saw doubt and anxious faces, you now see radiant and smiling countenances. The result of the holiday season is a stimulus to everybody, and it is easy to prove that, whatever may be the conditions elsewhere, there are no "hard times" in the vicinity of Cloverport.

The farmers not only have money besides, and when they deem it necessary they will spend it.

The only merchants were not the only ones that did a good business, for it seemed that the saloons were thriving still.

Not everybody, but a great many got on large calling—"jap" and at times the scenes in the street were not only disgraceful, but disgusting.

There were numerous, and occasional fist fights broken out, and probably dozens of arrests to everybody, and it is easy to prove that, whatever may be the conditions elsewhere, there are no "hard times" in the vicinity of Cloverport.

GOODS

As the end draws nearer prices get lower.

We are determined to run our stock down low, and to do this we can give you some rare bargains, and while we do this we wish to return our thanks to our many customers for their liberal patronage during the year about to end, and we hope by fair dealing to merit the same in the future.

We wish you a Happy New Year.

Christmas in Cloverport.

MERCHANTS DO A SURPRISINGLY LARGE HOLIDAY BUSINESS.

The Town is Crowded With Strangers, and Money Seems To Be As Plentiful as Limestone Rocks.

DRUNKEN ROWS AND FIGHTS

As a result of Christmas in Cloverport everybody seems to be satisfied and happy. Contrary to all expectations the merchants did a larger business than ever was known before. Those who made large preparations for the holidays and laid in large stocks of Christmas meat, fruit, and vegetables. Christmas eve morning, you could not buy a basket of fruit or a toy hardly in the entire city.

On Saturday, virtually Christmas eve, there were more people here than was ever known since "the evening and the morning were the first day."

People began to arrive early in the morning, and stores and restaurants were crowded with strangers. They were exchanging produce and cash for Santa Claus outfits, and clerks and extra forces of salesmen will be kept busy from eight o'clock a. m. till midnight. Chronic calamity howlers, who had situated themselves in unfavorable positions to draw unfavorable comparisons with the rest of the town, on Sunday evenings, when the holiday seasons were just put to flight, and no attention was paid to their cracking.

The News has interviewed the prominent merchants of the town and without an exception everyone expresses him--as highly pleased and perfectly satisfied with the result. When a few days ago you saw doubt and anxious forebodings in the faces of the business men, it will result in a change for the better. It is impossible to say. There are other things that must be taken into consideration in determining the future of the trade.

The number of cattle on the farms of Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa and the other great states has rather increased, and diminished during the past few years, and the supply of cattle from these farms is enormous.

The fact that there is but a small margin of profit in each sale of cattle, and the fact that one must have influence on the part of the buyers that are raised.

Every farmer must have a certain number of cattle to keep his lands in good condition to eat out enough grass for the winter, and this number will keep whether there is any particular profit in it or not.

How soon the coming of the new year will result in a change for the better can be predicted. The outlook then is about this.

The supply of range cattle, the herds of which are scattered throughout the state and at other irregular intervals, determined by the condition of pastures, tends to depress prices and at best to render them very ticklish, is the only reason and will in time come to have any marked influence on the market.

On the other hand, a supply of cattle will be increased on the farms of the country, and this number will be increased and quieted down somewhat. In a moral view, old citizens say that Saturday was the worst day that Cloverport ever experienced.

Christmas day was second only to the Saturday before. The stores all did a good business up until noon, when they closed for the remainder of the day. The crowd in town was large and occasional sales interested the men and women.

At about 10 o'clock at night, however,

Cattle can be raised on western farms to cheaply and in such great quantities that scarcely any condition of affairs can drive prices to the pitch of ruin or ten years ago, and the same is true of the country that receives such figures.

The best that they can hope for is a steady market at fairly reasonable prices, and this will be the case if the market is to be maintained.
